Excellent Business Opportunities

2018: San Juan, a Key Province for Argentina's Mining Development

A not-to-be-missed unique business opportunity

The authorities' commitment to attract investors

Aware of Argentina's high geologic potential, the national administration took steps towards opening up to international markets in order to lure investments that enable the development of the mining sector.

Some of the macroeconomic and, most specifically, microeconomic measures that promote investment in the mining arena include:

- Respect for the current legal and institutional framework
- Elimination of export withholdings (5% for dore and 10% for concentrates)
- Exchange rate streamlining
- Elimination of controls: freedom to repatriate capital to the country
- Improvement in the outlook and international credit rating thanks to the agreement with bondholders - return to international markets
- Flexibility to import capital goods and technology
- Setting up intergovernmental work teams: joint approach to environmental and community issues
